Charges Wheat Sales Big Help to Soviet Union

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater says the U.S. wheat sale to the Soviet Union, coupled with aid to Communist satellites, "has actually helped Russia herself to the point that she can put a team in that can depose Khrushchev and lean more heavily on Red China."

Addressing a crowd that packed the Union League Club in Philadelphia Wednesday night, the GOP presidential nominee forecast new troubles with the Communist world and said of the recent Kremlin shake-up: "I don't agree with the President that this is going to ease tensions."

The Republican nominee for the White House postponed a day of campaigning in the West and was due instead to attend a private memorial today for Hoover, who died Tuesday.

Pressing his quest for votes in southeastern Pennsylvania Wednesday, the Arizona senator invoked Hoover's memory time and again.

He called the former president a great patriot, a man who stood for honesty, a leader wise in foreign and fiscal affairs.

"I remember some of the first political advice he ever gave me," Goldwater said. "He said that a government that is big enough to give you all you want is big enough to take it all away."

Goldwater devoted considerable attention to foreign policy, both in his Pennsylvania speeches and in a nationally televised speech Wednesday night. That answered President Johnson's Sunday night address on recent world developments.

"We must now confront an enemy reunited and strengthened by our policy of aid," he said.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Federal Dist. Judge Harold Cox ordered a jail term for U.S. Atty. Robert Hauberg and directed Acting U. S. Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach to show why he should not be given a term in what the judge termed actions in contempt of court.

Cox delayed ordering Hauberg to jail for five days and said he himself was preparing the order directing Katzenbach to show why he should not be held in contempt.

The actions came after the attorney general's office directed the government lawyers here not to prepare indictments brought back by the federal grand jury.

There was no indication what cases were involved. The grand jury is the one which investigated the slaying of three civil rights workers at Philadelphia last June. No indictments were returned in that case when the jury sat at Biloxi last month.

China Rejects Limited Atom Test Proposal

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist China rejected today President Johnson's suggestion that it sign the limited nuclear test ban treaty and repeated its call for a global summit meeting to abolish nuclear weapons.

It had been expected that the United States would answer this call by proposing through diplomatic channels that the Peking regime sign the test ban treaty which more than 100 nations have signed.

President Johnson, in fact, said Sunday night in a televised speech to the nation: "We call on the world — especially Red China — to join the nations which have signed it (the treaty)."

An editorial today in the official Peking People's Daily called the treaty "nothing but a fraud."

"China is by no means obsessed by the idea of possessing nuclear weapons," the editorial Continued on Page Five

If You Go Through Life Saying Exactly What You Mean You Aren't Going to Get Anywhere

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — What is your double-talk rating?

If you go through life saying exactly what you mean, you aren't going to get anywhere. To be a standout in society you have to be able to think one way, and speak another. That's double-talk.

Here are a few examples of double-talk — with their literal translations.

"You certainly richly deserve the success you have won, sir." Some people have all the luck. "Your sermon was inspiring, reverend — yes, positively inspiring." How can a guy make even his sound so dull?

"Well, don't worry about it. Everybody makes a mistake now and then." But you make one every time you take a breath.

"It's simply been ages and ages since we met." And if I have my way, it'll be eons and eons before we meet again.

"I just dropped in, boss, to thank you personally for that swell bonus." At least it'll pay for the stamps on my Christmas cards.

"And now, major, perhaps you will be kind enough to recount to our guests some of your more thrilling battle experiences." If this joker ever got out of his swivel chair during a war, I'll eat his medals.

Retired Hoxie Doctor Dies

HOXIE, Ark. (AP) — Dr. Ralph Sloan, retired physician and well-known farmer, died late Wednesday after suffering a heart attack at his farm, four miles south of here.

A native of Lawrence County, Sloan had not practiced medicine for many years.

He devoted most of his time to farming and became well-known in soil conservation work. He had been on the board of the Jonesboro Soil Conservation District.

Survivors include his widow, three sons, a brother and six grandchildren.

Governor in More Attacks on Opponent

MAGNOLIA, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus stepped up his personal attack on Winthrop Rockefeller Wednesday and said the Republicans have little room in which to talk about election irregularities.

Faubus charged at a news conference before he started a campaign swing in the Southwest Arkansas that Rockefeller and his associates were making a lot of noise about election irregularities in Madison and Perry counties because they were trying to cover up "a wholesale fraud they hope to perpetrate in Pulaski County."

Faubus made the charge at Lake Village, where he spent Tuesday night after a day's campaigning in South Arkansas. He started Wednesday in Hamburg and moved swiftly through El Dorado, Magnolia and Lewisville, finishing with an evening rally at Hope.

Faubus said that Ozell Sutton, a Negro who has headed a Negro voter registration drive, delivered 2,001 poll tax applications to the collector's office in Continued on Page Five

Cooling Trend for Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A cooling trend is in store for Arkansas, the U. S. Weather Bureau said today. Light rain may accompany a cold front moving southward into the state, the bureau said.

Only a mild dip in temperatures was predicted for tonight and Friday, with overnight low readings in the 30s in the north section and in the 40s south.

Maximum daytime temperatures mostly in the 60s and low 70s were forecast for Friday, with partly cloudy skies.

This contrasts with maximum temperatures Wednesday ranging from 79 degrees at Pine Bluff to 85 degrees at Fort Smith. Overnight low readings ranged from 35 degrees at Fayetteville to 46 at Walnut Ridge.

No rainfall was reported in the state during the 24-hour period ending at 6 a.m.

'Smear Lash' Is Losing Votes for GOP, LBJ

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says a "smear lash" is causing Republicans to desert "the temporary leaders of their party."

The President, who takes time off from campaigning today to attend memorial services for former President Herbert Hoover in New York, addressed a cheering throng Wednesday night in downtown St. Louis, Mo.

He said a Republican leader in Illinois, whom he did not identify, had told him that in the previous 48 hours there had been marked defections of party members from the GOP ticket.

"He told me," Johnson said, "that it's not the backlash and it's not the front lash, it's the smear lash. When some people get desperate they get dangerous. When they get dangerous they are not cautious. And when they get to something the people do not want to go."

As he rose into several thousand people, street corner in St. Louis, Johnson obviously did not see a sign borne aloft which said: "Jenkins, Johnson's Profumo."

Walter W. Jenkins, formerly a top Johnson aide, was asked by the President to resign after it became known he had twice been arrested on morals charges.

Johnson supporters wrestled the sign down and the President observed: "There are a few like."

Rockefeller Lashes Out at Democrats

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Winthrop Rockefeller, in one of his most peppery speeches of the campaign, accused the Democrats Wednesday night of refusing to obey election laws.

"We of the minority party are having to fight, fight, fight to get the law adhered to," Rockefeller charged.

Several thousand persons from six counties gathered at Hot Springs Boys Club to eat barbecued chicken and Rockefeller responded with a speech that often took an angry tone.

At the same time, he accepted support of the Capital Citizens Council "if offered," but rejected the "actions or philosophy" of the segregationist group.

The council has not announced any endorsement of Rockefeller, the Republican candidate for governor.

Amis Guthridge, president of the council, said in an interview with Television Station KATV in Little Rock Wednesday night that the council would not endorse Rockefeller.

However, the council has paid for advertisements critical of Gov. Faubus' endorsement of the national Democratic ticket, President Johnson and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

Rockefeller did not discuss gambling. It is the hottest topic in Garland County, which has relied on casino gambling in the past as a major industry and economic stimulant.

Both Rockefeller and Faubus have announced that they are against proposed Amendment 55, which would allow Garland County to vote on whether to legalize casino gambling.

Rockefeller's acceptance of citizens council support was in a prepared statement handed to newsmen by his press secretary, John Ward.

The statement said Rockefeller had made no appeal to the council. It said Rockefeller had heard that the council's criticism was planned so it would hurt Rockefeller's chances of election and help Faubus.

"I will accept such support as a sincere gesture if offered because I have said I am seeking to be governor in order to represent the interests of all people," the statement said.

"I have not been in sympathy with the actions or philosophy of this group in the past," it said. "I have, in fact, been attacked by the (council) in the past. I have not condoned its actions in the past and do not today."

The statement concluded: "I can, however, understand how individuals of this group might"

Talents of Artist Are Discussed

The many talents of Leonardo da Vinci are too often unheralded because of his fame as an artist, the Hope Art Chapter recently told. It seems that the oldest of the masters in the most famous period of Italian art, the 16th century, was Leonardo da Vinci, the illegitimate son of a notary and a peasant girl.

He was a genius interested not only in bookish knowledge. To learn more about the human body he dissected more than 30 corpses; he was the first to probe into the mysteries of the growth of the child in the womb; he investigated the laws of waves and currents; he studied the flight of birds and insects to devise a flying machine he felt would be built some day.

Few know that he was a fine composer, with a good singing voice, a powerfully built athlete, and an extraordinarily handsome man. He was left-handed, wrote from right to left, and so his notes can only be read in a mirror.

Leonardo spent only a minor portion of his time painting and rarely completed his works. He died at 67 and left three undisputed masterpieces, the Last Supper, the Mona Lisa, and the Madonna of the Rocks.

Asks Hope Judge to Intervene in Morrilton Case

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Chancellor Lawrence T. Dawson of Pine Bluff today asked Circuit Judge Wiley Bean of Clarksville to step out of the case involving Gene Wirges and Sheriff Marlin Hawkins and let another judge handle the case.

Dawson asked Circuit Judge Lyle Brown of Hope, chairman of the Arkansas Judicial Council, to have the council request Bean to exchange circuits with another judge.

"I respect Judge Bean as a man and judge and am kindly disposed to him on a personal basis," Dawson wrote in a letter going to both Bean and Brown.

However, according to the news media, Judge Bean has become involved with the controversy between the two factions in Conway County to such an extent that it is obvious that he cannot possibly sit in judgment in these matters in the future with a fair and impartial eye.

The Judicial Council is an organization of state Supreme Court justices and state chancery and circuit judges.

"My statements herein have nothing whatever to do with the merits of the controversy in Conway County," Dawson wrote, "and it may very well be that Judge Bean considers that his actions and words are justified by the provocations of Mr. Wirges and his followers."

"Be that as it may," Dawson wrote, "the facts now are that Judge Bean by his conduct has wholly and completely joined forces in a completely partisan manner with Sheriff Hawkins to stamp out this real or imagined evil that he sees in Mr. Gene Wirges and the program of action that he espouses."

"Irrespective of which faction has right on its side," Dawson wrote, "the matters in dispute should be resolved by an impartial court presided over by a judge whose decision will be rendered in each and every case and point in issue solely on the facts involved."

"I am sending Judge Bean (Continued on Page Three)

Road Objections to Be Heard

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Highway Commission will hear next Wednesday objections by Negro residents of Pine Bluff to the proposed route of the Pine Bluff expressway.

Frenchman Will Refuse Nobel Prize

PARIS (AP)—Jean-Paul Sartre, French playwright-philosopher, said today he will refuse the Nobel Prize for Literature awarded by the Swedish Academy of Letters.

Sartre told a French newsman that he will give an explanation later to the Swedish press. He said that meantime he will have no comment.

Sartre earlier had told friends that he intended to reject the prize if it was awarded to him.

feel that the incumbent is not a man of principle. They may be tired of his double-talk and feel that at least they can always know where I stand on issues."

Rockefeller urged his audience to acquaint themselves with the state's election laws to avoid vote fraud in the Nov. 3 general election.

He said his staff has found many instances of election irregularities in Arkansas.

In an introductory talk, Rockefeller's campaign manager, G. Thomas Eisele, said he never felt so strongly as he did then that Rockefeller would defeat Faubus.

"Faubus had to choose in this campaign whether to discuss the issues or personalities," Eisele said. "He chose to deal in personalities and every time he gets on the stump he helps us."

Supporters from Hot Spring, Clark, Saline, Montgomery, Pike and Garland counties attended the barbecue.

Rockefeller repeated many of his previous campaign claims, including:

—Rockefeller is the man with the plan for Arkansas.

—Faubus' campaign is one of "slander, smears and tears."

—The Faubus administration is "arrogant."

—Rockefeller is talking about Arkansas' future, while Faubus is talking about what he and his machine have been able to do in 10 long years.

He said that Faubus was arrogant for seeking a sixth term to complete unfinished work.

"I agree there is unfinished work and it should be done by a new leadership recognizing the people," Rockefeller said as the crowd cheered.

"Help me take the state government away from the machine and give it back to the people," Rockefeller said.

Rockefeller called the new friendship between Faubus and Forrest Rozzell, executive secretary of the Arkansas Education Association, "the most extraordinary alliance that I've ever come on to."

Rozzell recently announced that he and Faubus had reached agreement on school problems. They were at odds on these questions for several years.

"Rozzell has called Faubus names I'd have to look up in a dictionary," Rockefeller said.

He started his speech by saying he was not running for governor to get the $10,000 salary.

"My opponents have pointed out time and again why I don't need the money," he said and the crowd laughed.

He introduced Travis Beeson and Camden, GOP candidate for lieutenant governor, and Charles R. Watson of Arkadelphia, Republican candidate for secretary of state.

Earlier Wednesday Eisele charged that Madison, Pike, Randolph, Stone, Bradley, Carroll, Cleburne, Cleveland and Howard counties have not held drawings for ballot positions for candidates, as the law requires.

He also said Madison, Little River, Nevada and Bradley counties had separate voting squared on ballots beside the names of each presidential and vice-presidential candidates, which violates a 1961 law.

Eisele said Madison County GOP committee chairman Dolson Collins had tried to get the two Democratic members of the three-member county election commission together for a drawing, but could not.

One of the Democratic members is Faubus' brother.

AP Movie-Television Writer

woke up one morning and decided I wanted to go back to work," says Betsy Drake, explaining why she is making her first movie in six years.

Betsy is the cello-voiced beauty who became an instant star when she appeared opposite

Cary Grant in "Every Girl Should Be Married." The title proved prophetic and in 1949 she became Mrs. Cary Grant. Her acting career was intermittent after her marriage; then, six years ago, she quit entirely.

"My marriage was breaking up, and that consumed all my energies," she said. "And I was tired of what went with acting in Hollywood."

Four years passed before she filed for divorce from Grant — "I still love him," she explained at the time. After another two years she decided to return to films. She talked to George Chasen, Cary's longtime friend and agent, who recommended an agent for her.

The first job turned out to be "Clarence, the Cross-Eyed Lion" with Marshall Thompson and the title performer at MGM.

"I suppose one of the things that made me want to go back to acting is the work I have been doing at the neuropsychiatric clinic at UCLA," she said. "I have been conducting classes in which the patients act out their hostilities instead of just talking about them. Nance Fabray has been working there this year, too."

"What I do is assume the role of villain in the dramas, rather than subjecting the doctors and nurses to that position. I take he part of mothers, fathers, mothers-in-law and others with whom the patients have hostilities. O, we have some pretty wild sessions some days." Betsy also writes. She claims to have little success with it, but the fact remains that she has sold two short stories to magazines, plus her original story for Cary's film "Houseboat." She used to script the "Mr. Blandings" radio show they did together.

Then she does intend to marry again? "Of course," she replied, citing the title of her first movie.

"DEAR ABBY"

TAKE YOUR CHOICE, LADY!

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: Is there a state near Iowa where a couple can go to be married in a hurry without blood tests, waiting and all that rigmarole? I am 69 and he is 74 and we have no need for all that stuff. We would like to get married as soon as possible as his children want to put him in a rest home. I thank you.

Sarah in Mason City, Ia. Dear Sarah: Illinois, Nebraska, Missouri and Wisconsin all require blood tests. To the north of you, however, is Minnesota, where no blood test is required—but there is a five-day waiting period. To the west of you is South Dakota, where a blood test is required, but there is no waiting. So if you can spare the blood but not the time, go to South Dakota. But if you have more time than blood to spare, Minnesota is your state.

Dear Abby: I have just bid goodbye to our last summer guest and I am ready for a sanitarium. I have cooked and cooked, and my bills are so high I wonder if I'll ever get them paid. I've run my appliances all day and have worn myself out cleaning and serving meals at all hours. This summer has been the worst! We have had one batch of uninvited guests after another. They could all have afforded to stay at a motel, but they prefer our brand of hospitality. I have had it. It's too bad people like this have to spoil it for the few who are considerate guests and would be welcome. Sign me "Nothing," as the name I would like to call myself right now would not look good in the newspaper.

Nothing: My guess is that you have, in one way or another, invited more guests than you intended to—or realized. Button your lip this winter and watch things improve next summer.

Dear Abby: My son is a good boy, but sometimes he picks the wrong friends. Here is what happened. A girl he knew from school was baby-sitting for a lady in a high-toned neighborhood, so my son and a few of his friends decided to drop by and just say "hi." When this girl

Will Decide on Henderson Homecoming Royalty

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — National League club owners met today to consider the transfer of the Milwaukee franchise to Atlanta for 1965 but a bare-knuckle fight between the Braves and Milwaukee officials raised speculation as to what action—if any—the owners would take.

The Braves' board of directors voted Wednesday to move the team—for the second time in 11 years—and the owners were expected to approve the shift.

But several hours after the club's decision to quit Milwaukee was announced, a temporary injunction was obtained by Milwaukee County officials restraining the Braves from moving or from seeking permission to move.

Whether the unprecedented legal maneuver would serve to block the club owners' action at today's special meeting in a mid-town hotel could not be determined. Legal papers apparently would have to be served here prior to the meeting.

League President Warren Giles said Wednesday night he had not been informed of the injunction and planned to go ahead with the meeting. He would seek legal counsel, he said, if it became necessary.

Milwaukee's legal counter-punch followed a 12-6 vote by the Braves' directors, meeting in Chicago, to shift the club.

The injunction forbids the Braves from applying to either the president of the league or the owners of other clubs for sanction to move. It temporarily prohibits the Braves, who have a year remaining on their County Stadium contract, from arranging, agreeing to play or scheduling any 1965 games at any site other than Milwaukee.

Braves representatives were ordered by Circuit Judge Ronald Drechsler to appear next Tuesday to show cause why the injunction should not be made permanent.

Until the legal bombshell was dropped it appeared certain that the owners would approve the shift. Approval by six of the other nine clubs was needed and no serious opposition was foreseen.

The southern exodus of the Braves, charter members of the National League who moved from Boston to Milwaukee in 1953, was approved at a closed, two-hour conference—one day after League President Warren Giles called the New York meeting "to further discuss the situation and take action thereon."

After the directors' meeting, newsmen, including one from Atlanta, were handed a prepared statement by Braves' publicity director Ernie Johnson.

son. The terse statement announced the decision to move the franchise but gave no reasons for the shift, explaining that Giles had asked that no information be released until after.

"Shortly thereafter," the statement read, "the Braves' management will release a detailed statement outlining all the various considerations for any action taken."

Although the Braves won't say so publicly, contributing factors to the decision included dwindling attendance and insufficient radio and television revenue.

Rumors of the move to Atlanta were circulated as early as the spring of 1963, shortly after Lou Perini sold controlling interest in the club to a syndicate of Chicago businessmen, headed by Bill Bartholomay.

Attendance had dipped from a high of 2,215,401 in 1957—when the Braves won the NL pennant and defeated the New York Yankees in the World Series—to 766,927 in 1962.

The Braves' decision to quit Milwaukee, coming on the heels of managerial changes by both the National and American League pennant winners, provided another bizarre element to the aftermath of the 1964 season, which ended a week ago with the St. Louis Cardinals' World Series victory over the New York Yankees.

Johnny Keane resigned as manager of the Cardinals and was hired by the Yankees, who had dismissed Yogi Berra. Red Schoendienst inherited the Cardinal job. Dick Sisler replaced the ailing Fred Hutchinson as manager of the Cincinnati Reds and Harry Walker succeeded Danny Murtaugh as pilot of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Last week Cleveland Indians directors decided to remain in Cleveland for at least one more year, dispelling reports of an American League shift.

Bobcats Rate Magnolia as Rugged Test

By CARTER HARDAGE
Hope Star Sports Writer

Magnolia's highly-rated Panthers play host Friday night to the Bobcats in what has been picked by the experts as one of the state's best matches of the week.

With a 4-2 record, the Panthers are fresh from a 7-6 win over Haynesville, La., and any Bobcat fan knows that that's a real feat. Especially since the south-of-the-border boys had racked up an undefeated record last week.

Magnolia stands 2-2 in conference play, having suffered at the hands of Malvern 20-7 and Crossett 7-0.

The Panthers have played only off and on so far behind their exceptionally balanced attack. If the offense is rolling, all they have to do is combine it with an alert and experienced defense and the opponent is in up to his neck.

Head coach Alan Howard stressed that "we feel like they are one of the toughest teams that we'll have to face this season. We're expecting a tough fight."

Hope will be defending its top spot in the district since Warren topped 14-6 last week before a rugged Malvern squad.

Very generous is victory, Malvern coach Bill Hunt made known the fact that Warren was the toughest team that Malvern had faced with the exception of Little Rock Catholic. Asked if this included Hope, he assured that it did.

We only have one question: Why is it that the Bobcats won 13-7 if they were such pushovers? Football is such a complicated sport. Perhaps we'll never understand it.

Here are the probable starting line-ups:

Broyles Admits Hogs Are Down

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas football coach Frank Broyles said Wednesday that the enthusiasm of the Razorbacks probably will decline this week.

"It would be a miracle if we didn't," he said. "After the Texas game, we're bound to. We'll know how much Saturday."

The fourth-ranked Porkers defeated Texas, then No. 1 in the nation, 14-13 in Austin, Tex., last Saturday night. Wichita Wheatshockers are the next Hog foes, in Little Rock this Saturday.

Broyles shortened Wednesday's routine practice because of 80 degree heat.

Koufax and Chance Poll Most Votes

NEW YORK (AP) — Los Angeles pitchers Sandy Koufax and Dean Chance of the Angels polled the most votes among players named to The Associated Press' annual major league baseball All-Star team today.

Koufax collected 77 votes and Chance 71 in the balloting by 85 baseball writers. The left-handed Koufax won 19 games before he was sidelined for the year by a sore arm in mid-August. Chance, a right-hander, compiled a 20-9 record.

The Angels also placed shortstop Jim Fregosi on the 10-man team. Three members of the New York Yankees, the American League pennant winners, were chosen. They were outfielder Mickey Mantle, catcher Elston Howard and second baseman Bobby Richardson.

First baseman Bill White was the only member of the champion St. Louis Cards selected.

Others named were third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore and outfielders Willie Mays of San Francisco and Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh.

The voting was one-sided for each position except outfield and shortstop. Clemente, third in the balloting, had 61 votes followed among the outfielders by Mays with 54 and Mantle 51.

At shortstop, Fregosi had 35 votes and Luis Aparicio of Baltimore collected 21.

In addition to Aparicio, the second team was comprised of first baseman Orlando Cepeda and right-handed pitcher Juan Marchal of San Francisco, outfielder Hank Aaron and

Russians Build Up Points in Olympic Games

By TED SMITS
Associated Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (AP) — Russia's on-rushing Olympic forces, buoyed by the strength of gymnasts and canoeists, added 13 medals to their collection today, pulled to within nine of the United States' leading total and appeared to be in excellent position to overhaul the Americans.

The Russian gymnasts picked up six medals today on this next to last full day of competition in the 18th modern Olympics and paddlers added four, including three gold.

That gave Russia, which has dominated the last three Games, a total of 77, including 23 gold, 21 silver and 33 bronze. The United States got only two medals — but didn't really expect either of those — today and now leads with 88 over-all, 34 gold, 26 silver and 28 bronze.

Pretty Marcia Jones, a 23-year-old Michigan State student from Oklahoma City, surprised by picking up a bronze medal in women's kayak singles and Gloria Perrier and Francine Fox of Washington, D.C., got a silver in women's kayak pairs.

That helped. But everything points to Russia overtaking the United States Friday.

For example, the Russians are assured of seven medals in the boxing finals, either silver or gold, because they have that many fighters who have made the last round. The United States has one, heavyweight Bill Frazier of Philadelphia.

The Soviets seem assured of two medals in volleyball, where both their men's and women's teams are among the leaders. The United States is out of contention.

The United States and Russia are matched in the basketball final, so each will pick up a medal there. But aside from the basketball and boxing medals, the United States doesn't have much hope.

That means, counting today's total and the medals which both countries are certain of taking Friday, the United States leads, 90-87.

But the powerful Soviet gymnastic team, which took 15 medals in 1960 and already has 12 in these Games, has 11 competitors in five final events Friday and could easily make up the difference.

But the key to it all is the success or failure of the Russian gymnasts.

Although nationalism and team comparisons are discouraged by Olympic officials, the team struggle between the Americans and the Soviets has been a key factor ever since Russia began competing in the Games.

Only their first time out, at the 1952 Games in Helsinki, have the Russians lost. The United States won the medal race there 76-69, and 40-22 in gold. At Melbourne in 1956 Russia led 98-74 and 37-32 in gold. In 1960 at Rome the count was 103-71 for Russia over-all and 43-34 in gold.

Such team comparison was further discouraged today in a terse little message that moved on the official results wire of the Olympics. The message said:

"At the request of the Tokyo Olympic Organizing Committee, acting on the instructions from Mr. Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, International Business Machines (which runs the results service) is discontinuing as of now the compilation and publication of the medals list."

The IOC always has objected to such tabulations, contending that each event is an individual competition and that nationalism should be discouraged.

The United States, which got surprising support from its catcher Joe Torre of Milwaukee, second baseman Ron Hunt of the New York Mets, third baseman Ken Boyer of St. Louis, outfielders Tony Oliva of Minnesota and Johnny Callison of Philadelphia and southpaw pitcher Gary Peters, Chicago White Sox.

The Braves' decision to quit Milwaukee, coming on the heels of managerial changes by both the National and American League pennant winners, provided another bizarre element to the aftermath of the 1964 season, which ended a week ago with the St. Louis Cardinals' World Series victory over the New York Yankees.

Johnny Keane resigned as manager of the Cardinals and was hired by the Yankees, who had dismissed Yogi Berra. Red Schoendienst inherited the Cardinal job. Dick Sisler replaced the ailing Fred Hutchinson as manager of the Cincinnati Reds and Harry Walker succeeded Danny Murtaugh as pilot of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Last week Cleveland Indians directors decided to remain in Cleveland for at least one more year, dispelling reports of an American League shift.

Local Industries Are Visited

Those going on the Chamber of Commerce sponsored Industrial Tour yesterday saw two products that are presently being manufactured by the G. & S. Manufacturing Company located on the Hempstead County Industrial Foundation Site. Pictured is their Wood Stick Loader mounted on a pulpwood truck and a Poultry Feed Tank used by poultrymen in the area for storing bulk feed for broiler or commercial egg laying houses.

This particular tank has a capacity of 9 tons, however Mr. Gilbert stated that these tanks are custom built and can be made for use with any size house.

Other places visited by the touring group were, The Tolber Corporation and the Hempstead Manufacturing Company. The Tolber Corporation manufactures Plastic Coating for a wide variety of uses by other manufacturers throughout the nation. "A considerable amount of research is presently being done, and we expect to see much more use of this product in the future," said Mr. Clyde Fouse, local manager of the company.

The Hempstead Manufacturing Company, a large sawmill operation, is moving toward full production capacity of the mill, according to Houston Gunter, manager of the mill operations. They presently are employing 42 local people and so far, all logs cut and run through the mill have come from Hempstead County. More expansions are planned for this plant within the next few months.

can consider an easy foe, and this week is no exception. The best pairing on the Class AAA schedule this week is between Texarkana and Fort Smith Northside, at Fort Smith. Blytheville goes to Jonesboro, and the rest of the Big 12 is playing outside the conference.

Our score last week was .782. This week's shots: Little Rock Central, 14, El Dorado 13. The Tigers are No. 1 any way you look at it—today.

Little Rock Hall 20, Springdale 13. But worse than the score will indicate. Blytheville 7, Jonesboro 0. A rich rivalry, and maybe an upset.

Conway 14, North Little Rock 7. The Wampus Cats have won this one in years when they had less cause and less to work with. Pine Bluff 20, Crossett 0 Easy.

Fayetteville 14, Springfield, Mo., Central 12. Just because it's homefolks. Smackover 10, Hot Springs 7. But the reviving Trojans may surprise us.

Fort Smith Northside 14, Texarkana 13. Leave it to the Grizzlies to block that point.

Now, Class AA: Hartford 7, Fort Smith Southside 0. Rogers 12, Harrison 7. Van Buren 14, Subiaco 6. Paragould 16, Batesville 10. Marianna 14, DeWitt 10. Forrest City 7, Wynne 0.

Ex-President Really Had Five Careers

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Hoover, who died this week, had five careers. Four were brilliant. But the most important of them, the presidency, for him turned out to be an unhappy and bitter one.

In his early 30s he was considered the top mining engineer in the world. And he was a millionaire by 40.

By the time he was 46 he had a world reputation as a humanitarian for his handling of relief in Europe during and after World War I.

(President Wilson took him to the Paris Peace Conference and he did so well that John Maynard Keynes said he was the "only man who emerged from the ordeal with an enhanced reputation.")

For seven years, from 1921 to 1928, he was an extremely able administrator as secretary of commerce under Presidents Harding and Coolidge.

And in his advancing old age after World War II he was recognized as a great public servant for the time and effort he gave Presidents Truman and Eisenhower in reorganizing the federal government.

But in his years after leaving the White House, if he read what one American historian after another said about his presidency, it must have been a scarring experience which, in his lifetime, he could not hope to erase.

Perhaps none was more harsh than this terse summary by Frederick Lewis Allen: "Mr. Hoover's greatest mistake had been in getting himself elected."

He got off on the wrong foot as a bad prophet before he was ever elected, although probably most people agreed with him at the time. In the 1928 campaign he made this statement, thrown back at him many times later:

"We in America today are nearer to the final triumph over poverty than ever before in the history of any land. The poorhouse is vanishing from among us."

He had distinguished support for such optimism. Just four months before the 1929 market crash the financial wizard, Bernard Baruch, was saying: "The economic condition of the world seems on the verge of a great upward movement."

There were, however, others who could see more clearly than Hoover or Baruch. For instance, Alexander Dana Noyes, financial editor of the New York Times, was warning his readers what to expect.

Hoover took office March 4, 1929 on a false wave of prosperity. Seven months later came the crash.

Unemployment spread until by 1933 it had reached about 15 million, banks failed, homes were lost, people were hungry, soup kitchens fed some, others sold apples on street corners, others starved in despair.

Even as the depression deepened and spread across the world Hoover seemed unable to realize the American free enterprise system couldn't pull itself up by its own bootstraps. He kept making optimistic forecasts. All were wrong.

He did many things to help. He got a 50 per cent reduction in railroad rates on foodstuffs hauled into farm areas stricken by drought; he backed the use of federal funds for public works; he approved creation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make loans to private business (by the time he left office in 1933 it had handed out $1.5 billion) he sponsored the Federal Home Loan Bank which helped some people save their homes from a mortgage foreclosure although by then many homes were gone; he got 85 million bushels of wheat and almost a million bales of cotton turned over to the Red Cross for relief purposes.

But he seemed to fail to realize the enormity of what was happening around him.

Eight months after the market crash he signed the Haley-Smoot tariff bill which raised American tariffs across the board from farm products to manufactured goods to the highest point in American history.

That seems incredible now. It seemed incredible then to the American Bankers Association and industries with foreign markets. They objected. But so did nearly every reputable economist in the United States. A protest was signed by 1,038 members of the American Economic Association, warning that the tariff act would mean disaster.

The reaction was fast in other countries whose products were thus frozen out of the American market. Within two years 25 countries established higher tariffs on American goods in retaliation. This country's trade dived further.

What was Hoover's trouble? He had a fixed belief, and nothing could shake him from it, that government help and involvement in American life

UNHEEDED — In Detroit, a woman passing by stops to look at the wreckage of a car whose driver failed to heed the warning of the sign. The autoist, Charles Nabors, was slightly injured.

Pulaski County on the day of the deadline.

He said Rockefeller furnished the money for them.

Sutton said he did deliver several hundred applications to the collector's office on Oct. 1 — the last day to pay poll taxes. He said that during two months of the drive he delivered 9,051 applications to the collector's office.

Dip I. Robertson Sr., chief deputy Pulaski collector, said Faubus had been "misinformed by someone."

Some of Faubus' aides reportedly were advising him to tone down his personal attacks on Rockefeller, but he apparently was unimpressed. He continued to repeat the allegations he has been making for a week and he added a new story about "drinking parties" for an audience of about 500 at Magnolia.

"The police have never come out to the governor's mansion to break up any wild drinking parties," Faubus said. "You can't say the same for every mountaintop mansion in Arkansas."

He retold his story about seizure of a load of Rockefeller whisky by agents of the state Alcohol Beverage Control Board back in 1933, and he again claimed that Rockefeller "has more whisky at his front room at Petit Jean than there is in any whisky store in Arkansas."

Faubus got a solid endorsement at El Dorado from Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., who spoke briefly and called Faubus "one of the greatest governors Arkansas ever had."

McClellan said Arkansas should be proud of the fiscal policies of the Faubus administration.

China Rejects

continued. "It will stop developing them as soon as U.S. imperialism does so."

The newspaper, official organ of the Chinese Communist party, said the proposal for abolition of nuclear weapons by a world summit meeting is "practical, reasonable, easily feasible and involves no question of control."

The State Department disclosed Wednesday that Premier Chou En-lai of Red China had sent to President Johnson Monday the same message which he had circulated to other government chiefs around the world, even though the United States and Red China do not have diplomatic relations.

Both Secretary of State Dean Rusk and President Johnson have already publicly dismissed the Chinese maneuver as a propaganda play for the purpose of offsetting criticisms of Red China's first nuclear explosion last Friday.

U.S. officials have no real belief at this time that Red China can be prevailed upon to sign the year-old nuclear test ban treaty.

But officials say that worldwide public opinion which in many countries has been severely critical of the Red Chinese tests might eventually have some influence in Peking.

He wanted private charity and then states and cities to provide relief before seeking federal help. He promised that if the time ever came when such direct help was required, it would be provided. For him the time never came.

For this many thought him heartless. He was anything but. He was a kind man, with a concern for people. But he had a fixed philosophy which belonged in a previous century and was now outdated. It was his greatest misunderstanding.

this in every crowd. But as the days go on they get fewer and fewer.

Johnson bore down on the theme that "peace is the most important issue in this campaign." He said there could not be the kind of "total victory" his opponent has been advocating.

"In a world such as this — a nuclear world — there is no room for bluster and bluff and belligerence," he said. "There is room only for courage, intelligence and reason."

Johnson said the Republican policies "are built on dangerous foundations, because they talk about a nuclear war as if it were inevitable and a nuclear bomb as if it were 'merely another weapon.'"

Wherever he went, Johnson attracted large street crowds. He remarked at one point that "I never saw so many smiling faces."

Flying to Kansas City, Mo., from Akron, Ohio, the President spent 25 minutes discussing politics and the campaign with former President Harry S. Truman, hospitalized after a fall last week.

Johnson reported Truman had told him "he wants to see me elected more than he wanted to be elected himself in 1938."

Gov. John B. Connally of Texas traveled with the President during the day and rode in the White House bubble top car for the first time since the late President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in it and he was wounded on Nov. 22, 1963.

Johnson, who begins his 12th month in office today, will be at Union Station here Friday when the train bearing Hoover's body arrives. The body will lie in state in the Capitol rotunda.

When he resumes campaigning Saturday, Johnson is scheduled to visit Memphis and Chattanooga, Tenn., and to make a night speech in Baltimore.

Mississippi River Bridge Discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of highway departments of Arkansas and Tennessee asked the Bureau of Public Roads Wednesday to begin construction of a Mississippi River bridge at Memphis as soon as possible.

Ward Goodman, director of the Arkansas Highway Commission, and commission chairman Chauncey L. Denton were accompanied by Rep. E. C. Gathings, D-Ark.

The group was to meet with Army Engineers today.

"Both meetings are designed to clarify the position of the various agencies," the group said after the meeting. There are no conflicts, but we are concerned about the time factor."

Television and Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — Raymond Massey, who plays kindly, gray, dedicated Dr. Gillespie in NBC's "Dr. Kildare" series, recently has been appearing on television as Raymond Massey, American citizen, in an earnest pitch for funds to support the candidacy of his chosen presidential candidate.

The filmed appeal, seen at the end of several paid broadcasts on behalf of the Goldwater-Miller ticket, has drawn a spate of mail. Massey, in New York on a personal appearance tour for the NBC program, estimated that the mail has been running at a rate of about five disapproving letters to four approving.

Massey noted that while many performers openly ally themselves with one or another political party, others are more careful to present a neutral face to the world.

"I think many of them are scared — not of the effect it will have on the public, but about how the producers of their shows feel," he said. "I feel strongly about politics and some years ago I campaigned for (former President Dwight D.) Eisenhower."

Steve Allen's syndicated late evening show winds up Friday night, leaving the comedy star free to concentrate on his host's chores on "I've Got a Secret" and to develop a new variety series in which CBS is reputedly interested for next season.

ABC's "Jimmy Dean Show" is pre-empted tonight for a paid Republican half hour. The second 30 minutes will be filled by a news special on the campaign.

Benjamin Franklin organized the first circulating library in America in 1731.

Teacher Kills Wife and Self

DENHAM SPRINGS, La. (AP) — A college teacher killed his wife, shot and clubbed his four children and then committed suicide late Wednesday night, police reported.

Officers, arriving soon afterward, rushed the children to a hospital in Baton Rouge. An 8-year-old boy died en route. The others were in critical condition.

The dead: Harvey Smith, 36, a faculty member at Southeastern Louisiana College in Hammond and a former minister; his wife, Sarah, 30; and their son Kenneth.

In critical condition were Kathy, 2, Janice, 10, and Glenn, 6. Physicians said the two girls were shot in the head with a .22 caliber pistol, then slugged with a hammer. Glenn was beaten with the hammer.

Odum Graves, chief deputy, said no one had any ideas what triggered Smith's bloody urge to wipe out the family.

Boxing at the Olympics Is Different

By JIM BECKER
Associated Press Sports Writer
TOKYO (AP) - It was Jack Dempsey who explained his first fight with Gene Tunney by saying: "I just forgot to duck."

At the Olympics, it doesn't even matter if you remember. Ducking is illegal. So is tying up an opponent inside. Hooking is frowned on. And when the fellows in the corner get all excited, and start yelling at their tiger "murder the bum," the referee stops the fight, and tells them to shut up.

That's boxing at the Olympic Games, where the amateur spirit is in style, but you can still get your head knocked off if you aren't careful.

The leather-throwers have been at it since the Games started, and by the time the gold medals are hung around the necks of the winners Friday night there will have been more than 300 three-round bouts.

Oddly enough, the fighters haven't drawn too well, even though the sport - Proversion - is still thriving in Japan.

Many seats in the auditorium are occupied by Japanese kids in school uniforms, a sure sign of audience packing at these Games.

Some mothers bring their little babies strapped on their backs. This seems a little strange to a visitor, but it is reported that Japanese have even been known to take babies in arms to strip-tease shows.

True or not, it is inscrutable enough that the cries of little babies sometimes ring out above the thuds of boxers' blows.

But back to that ducking business. Under international amateur rules, it is against the law to duck a punch, because it is too easy to butt the other guy when your head is down.

The referee will shout "stop," and tell you to keep your head up, if you duck.

The proper way to get under a punch is to bend your knees. The referees don't like holding on the inside, either, and they will yell "stop" for that.

You're supposed to punch with the knuckles, and many a hooker is warned to hit with the flat part of the glove.

But most of the warnings are to the men in the corners to shut up. No advice is allowed.

One funny thing, though - all those warnings in the ring don't seem to mean anything.

Ask Tony Barber, the Australian light-middleweight. He was in there with a tough Frenchman, and mid-way through the first round the two men clinched.

"Stop," the referee said. Tony did. The Frenchman knocked him stiff.

Alabaman Jumps Into Fish Lead

BULL SHOALS, Ark. (AP) - Aubrey Stephens of Alexander City, Ala., jumped into the lead in the men's division of the World Series of Sport Fishing on Lake Bull Shoals Wednesday.

The Alabama champion caught four bass, pushing his point total of 625.

Ken White of Independence, Mo., defending series champion, pulled into second place, landing two trout, one of which weighed five pounds. His point total is 512.

Seven of 12 champions and one challenger from each of 24 dock areas will qualify for a final fishoff scheduled Saturday.

Montreal Is Leading in Hockey Play

CHICAGO (AP) - Montreal took over the National Hockey League lead with a 5-5 tie with the Chicago Black Hawks Wednesday night.

The Canadiens remain unbeaten in four games with two ties to bag six points. Chicago has five points and shares second place with Toronto. However, the Maple Leafs can regain the lead with a victory at Boston tonight in the only game scheduled.

Chico Maki's goal in the third period pulled the Hawks into the stalemate at Montreal after Chicago blew an early three-goal lead. The Canadiens struck for five second-period scores with unaided goals by Jacques Laperriere and Ralph Backstrom within eight seconds, capping the rally.

In New York, a deflection by Detroit's Norm Ullman provided a third-period tally and a 1-0 victory for the Red Wings. It ended a duel of goals between Detroit rookie Roger Crozier and the Rangers' Marcel Paille.

Insists Decision Made Last April

MILWAUKEE (AP) - The Sentinel says that despite their persistent denials the top officials of the Milwaukee Braves decided last April to move the National League baseball franchise to Atlanta.

Baseball writer Lou Chapman quoted an unidentified member of the Braves board of directors as saying that the club's brass decided on the move when a concerted drive netted the sale of 4,477 season tickets last winter.

"They didn't think this was a significant enough upswing, and made up their minds to move elsewhere," the director said, noting that 750 fewer season tickets were sold in 1963.

The Braves, including board chairman Bill Bartholomay and President John McHale, flatly denied persistent reports the Braves planned to move until midway through the 1964 season.

Boom Minded Economy Is Shrugged Off

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - A boom-minded economy that has been shrugging off the General Motors strike now is starting to feel the pinch - and the squeeze could tighten fast.

Layoffs are spreading among suppliers. Merchants in cities where such plants are the biggest business report retail sales slackening.

Production estimates for 1964 are being revised downward by such allied industries as tire makers and some glass and fabric producers.

On the over-all economic graphs the trouble is starting to show. The nation's industrial production index seems certain to dip this month. The time lag in getting all suppliers working at top speed again once the strike is ended and built-up stocks reduced may cause a drop in the earlier estimates for the year-end results.

Some 300,000 GM employees have been on strike since Sept. 25. A national record was reached Oct. 5. But nearly 50 of the company's 130 local bargaining units still are negotiating, and all are idle. Management and labor each blames the other for the slowness of the pace.

The union's GM Council will vote Friday on whether to recommend ratification of the national contract. Local units will vote Sunday. Those still negotiating local issues will decide whether to return to work before their disputes are settled.

At first, suppliers of parts and the steel mills and rubber factories went right on. Either they were happily catching up with the big orders already on hand from GM, or satisfying other clamoring customers with earlier deliveries.

Now layoffs are spreading - in some railroad yards where GM or its suppliers are the big item - in companies catering food to GM or supplier plants - in factories making paint thinners, window fasteners, coat fabrics, or the basic chemicals and metals that go into such production.

GM pays more than $7 billion a year to more than 30,000 suppliers of one item or another - and this spending is scattered across the nation.

Transportation systems handling materials, supplies or completed cars, also are beginning to suffer.

Sales of new cars in the first third of October fell 20 per cent from the year earlier. Among the reasons are the empty showrooms of many

"USE MORE ARKANSAS WOOD"

"Arkansas wood is wonderful! There's nothing like it for homes, churches, businesses, schools! Wood means quality in today's better constructed houses . . . homes that become more beautiful with the years. Wood builds graceful churches which welcome the worshiper with quiet, simple dignity and inspiring beauty. Wood gives the breath of life to offices and stores.

Paneling, flooring, beams and furniture from wood are natural products that add warmth to homes, churches and businesses. Today's modern wood schools go one step further . . . they offer economy and safety by providing quality classrooms at a lower initial cost and lower maintenance.

Wood means continued growth to Arkansas' industrial and agricultural economy. During National Forest Products Week . . . and all during the year . . . I hope you'll continue to USE MORE ARKANSAS WOOD."

Khrushchev Not Afraid of the Devil

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I'm not afraid of the devil," Premier Khrushchev said in 1959, trying to quell an American labor leader. "And you're a man." This was more than a retort.

Khrushchev was expressing his attitude toward the world, as he showed many times. But it wasn't always true. He had been Joseph Stalin's passive vassal until the old tyrant died in 1953.

Then Khrushchev became the Russian boss and his own man. He asserted himself in a four-hour speech denouncing Stalin as a murderer, monster and mental case. He repudiated the "cult of the individual" and one-man rule.

With this speech Khrushchev began the liberalization of Russia. He led it out of the dark ages. The power of the secret police was diminished. The Russian people had a new sense of life.

And later, when he preached "peaceful co-existence" with the capitalist world, the West, while remaining suspicious, sighed with relief. But with the speech and the new policy the Communist world became unstuck.

Everywhere Communist parties had to ask themselves: How could they explain, in view of the revelations about Stalin, their own long subservience to Russia's wants and wishes and the myth of Soviet infallibility?

Around the world Communist parties for the first time began to show some independence of Russia. Eventually the two giant neighbors, Red China and Russia, not only split but appear to be in deadly rivalry.

Perhaps all this means the triumph of nationalism over communism, as might have been predicted. But to Chinese protests that war and revolution are steps forward, Khrushchev asked: "Forward to what? The grave?"

He said "prosperity is the only thing worth fighting for." He ridiculed the Chinese, saying they preferred "revolution" to "goulish." Unless the splits are healed and unity restored world communism may disintegrate.

Now, after 10 years in Stalin's seat, Khrushchev has been retired. Moscow announced it Tuesday night. The reason given was poor health and age.

Khrushchev is 70. But Moscow said his policies of destalinization and economic improvement would be continued under the new leadership. In 1964 Khrushchev launched a 20-year Russian development program unmatched in scope since Lenin's in 1919.

Khrushchev's two top protégés take over: Leonid Brezhnev, 57, as Communist party secretary, and Alexei Kosygin, 60, as Premier. Perhaps the Moscow statement and these two appointments truly mean continuity.

But at this moment in history

there is only one honest thing that any interpreter of events can say about the meaning of this end to Khrushchev's career: "I don't know."

President Johnson Thursday night admitted he didn't know. He said the change might or might not be a sign of big turmoil or changes to come. He said the American people would remain steadfast.

One thing is certain: Relations between the United States and Russia under Khrushchev are far better than they ever were under Stalin although both countries distrust each other so much they never stop arming.

This is also certain: Khrushchev was one of the most colorful and spectacular leaders in the history of the world. And he was unpredictable. He could laugh, joke, revile, denounce, boost and belittle.

He is an atheist but he was forever talking about swearing on the Bible and invoking the name of the Lord and he was loaded with contradictions.

He said he would welcome Americans to the moon, but he wouldn't accept U.S. disarmament inspectors inside Russia. He talked of freedom in Russia but for years wouldn't let Russians hear American broadcasts because, he said, he wanted to protect them from propaganda.

Hardly anybody was safe from his tongue. He called former Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Sen. John F. Kennedy in the 1960 campaign the "lackeys of capitalism."

He dismissed President Eisenhower as "weak-kneed" and fit only to run a "children's home." He suggested West German Chancellor Adenauer was a "nut," derided Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito as a "renegade," criticized British Laborites as "reactionaries," and considered Sen. Barry Goldwater "no embellishment."

He failed in some of his promises — for instance, the promise to drive the West out of Berlin. But he got away with shutting off East Berlin with a wall. He tried to bulldoze President Kennedy by putting missiles in Cuba but when his hand was called he backed down.

He had to come, gold in hand, to buy wheat from the United States and Canada because Soviet agriculture failed to produce enough. Nevertheless, Russia moved under him. No matter what he was, he was never dreary.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Victor Borge will soon be marking the 25th anniversary of a long-blooming romance between himself and the United States of America.

It began back in 1940 when the Danish piano-humorist and Adolf Hitler decided to disagree. "And look what happened to him!" Borge is fond of pointing out.

Borge recently was back in Hollywood to emcee a couple of Hollywood Palace shows and to pick up some handsome fees for local engagements with his one-man show. In between, he

Best Formula for Clean Carpets

Who shampoo carpets best? You! Thanks to new techniques and methods, you can shampoo your carpets in the home safely, easily, effectively, without bringing in outsiders and at an extremely low cost. This means your carpets will wear longer.

Regular care makes the shampooing task easier in the long run. The trick is in understanding the kinds of dirt, for carpet dirt isn't just dirt. There's surface litter — things like hair, ravelings and paper that stay on top. A carpet sweeper is best for picking them up. Then there's dust. And gritty dirt, like sand and mud. A good vacuum cleaner will remove this kind of dirt. "Carpet grease" is the worst kind of dirt. It is left on the surface fibres by cooking, tobacco fumes and impurities from the outside. It holds in the underlying dirt and forces the pile down. Nothing will remove it but a good shampooing.

There's a simple three step formula for carpet cleaning that will make the shampooing task easier:

Sweep daily. A quick brush-up with a carpet sweeper, especially in traffic areas, removes dirt before it has a chance to penetrate.

Vacuum clean weekly. Dust and gritty dirt seep down into the fibres. The longer it is there, the deeper it settles, the harder it is to remove, and the more it cuts the fibres.

Shampoo twice a year. "Carpet grease" adheres to the surface, dimming the color, holding in the dirt. Vacuum first, then shampoo.

Use a detergent shampoo in one of the new applicators with a foam generating system that eliminates soaking the carpet. Shampoo over a four-foot area at a time. Let the shampoo do the work; don't rub and scrub. It's easier on you and the carpet, too. Let the shampoo set — then vacuum dry.

Be kind to your carpet always. You'll find it most rewarding, not only to your purse, but to your peace of mind. You'll see your reward in the brightness of your carpet. You'll know it pays, because your carpet will wear longer.

Student Council Adopts New Code

CALDWELL, Kan. (AP) — The student council at Caldwell High School adopted a new code of conduct which includes this provision:

"Students will refrain from showing their affections for one another while in the student area, as this is neither the time or place to associate on intimate terms."

paused to reflect in his Chateau Marmont penthouse suite about the changes in his life during the past quarter-century.

"I had been enemy No. 1 of the small but active Nazi party in Denmark," he recalled. "They constantly attacked me on the front pages of their newspaper because I spoke my mind about Hitler. I knew the invasion was coming and I would be on the 'liquidation list,' so I took an engagement in Sweden."

The Germans did invade Denmark, and Borge's return was demanded. He replied that he had contracts to fulfill, and he managed to have his wife join him. Because she was an American citizen, he managed to join her on the last transport ship leaving from northern Europe.

Borge is fond of recalling his equipment for conversation, when he arrived in New York.

"My English consisted of what I remembered from school 15 years before," he said. "Mostly it was: 'I am, you are, he is, etc.'"

But Borge is a fast study, and he soon learned the language — and the customs. He had his first engagement at a charity affair in Palm Beach, Fla., filling in when Hildegarde became ill. He was a hit from the start and played a date at a Palm Beach night club. He was wry, however, of appearances before small audiences.

He realized his material, such as phonetic punctuation and playing the "Blue Danube" backwards, might easily be lifted by other entertainers. He wanted to establish it with a mass audience so it would be identified forever as his own.

Borge decided to go to California, where living might be cheaper and there was a chance of getting into the movies. Through Danish friends he got an audition before Rudy Vallee, who helped place him on Bing Crosby's Kraft Music Hall. He was a guest star for a whole year, and his American career was launched.

Old Pal Did Not Bat Eye Over Nikita

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Nikita Khrushchev was ousted last week, it was his old friend Anastas I. Mikoyan who presided as the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet stripped Khrushchev of the premiership.

It is unlikely that Khrushchev, 70, was surprised. It is even more unlikely that Mikoyan, 69 next month, batted an eye.

Luck, utter ruthlessness and the wily art of switching sides have stood Mikoyan in good stead for more than four decades. Again he has managed to survive in the dark and often bloody Soviet politics.

The hawknosed, stoop-shouldered old Bolshevik with the clipped mustache is tough. He is a cynic, a hard bargainer. He is adroit.

Alone among Stalin's cronies and drinking companions, alone among the many non-Slavs who helped lead the Revolution, Mikoyan remains in the Soviet elite 47 years later, even though cast in the largely ceremonial role of president.

Mikoyan was born of Armenian parents near the Georgian capital of Tiflis, a carpenter's son. When he was 20, he was graduated with full honors from a theological seminary, trained for the Armenian priesthood.

"But when I received my certificate," Mikoyan said later, "I had a very clear feeling that I did not believe in God and that I had, in fact, received a materialistic uncertainty."

Capture by anti-Communists during the civil war after the Bolshevik Revolution, Mikoyan staged a spectacular jail break and escaped the firing squad.

An experienced street brawler with a smashed nose, Mikoyan caught on with the fast-rising Stalin, also a Georgian and an ex-seminarian. Although a full Politburo member by 1935, Stalin apparently never fully trusted Mikoyan.

But Mikoyan got through the bloody Stalinist purges by making himself an indispensable expert in foreign trade.

Mikoyan was the first Soviet leader to attack Stalin after the feared dictator died, opening the way for Khrushchev's famous denunciation of the Stalin personality cult.

To the outside world Mikoyan appeared to be Khrushchev's closest collaborator among the men who won the Kremlin after Joseph Stalin died. He backed Khrushchev in 1957 when the Central Committee's Presidium voted to get rid of him as Communist party first secretary. The full Central Committee reversed the vote, showing that Mikoyan had a sixth sense of how things would go.

Following the purge of Georgi Malenkov, V. M. Molotov and Lazar Kaganovich, Mikoyan stayed on as deputy premier, one of the most powerful men in the Soviet Union.

Nonetheless, Mikoyan never was the complete Khrushchev man. Top Polish planner Seweryn Bialer, who defected to the West in 1956 and who had access to minutes of Kremlin meetings, reported that for all of Mikoyan's helpful contributions to Khrushchev's foreign policy, the astute Armenian took care not to associate himself too conspicuously with Khrushchev's domestic policy.

Mikoyan, Bialer said, was too smart an economist and businessman to believe in what Bialer called Khrushchev's "sheer economic adventurism."

Vary Fine Frozen Vegetables

Here's a "cute trick" who has a cute trick with frozen vegetables. She starts with a package of frozen green peas with cream sauce, adds a little meat, a pinch of exotic seasoning, and presto! — a hearty main dish made in minutes. Here's how she does it:

Curried Peas and Dried Beef

1 package (8 oz.) frozen green peas with cream sauce
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
1 jar (5 oz.) dried beef
1 to 2 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup milk

Place peas and milk in saucepan. Cover and bring just to a boil over medium high heat. Remove from heat and stir until sauce is smooth. Add curry powder and stir until blended. Meanwhile, rinse dried beef with hot water. Drain well; sauté quickly in butter. Pour curried peas into serving dish; arrange beef around edge. Serve at once. Makes 3 cups, or 2 or 3 servings.

Forests Are Important to Arkansas

By LEN TALIAFERRO
Associated Press Writer

One of the nation's most important industries, and certainly one of Arkansas' most important, will be honored next week when the man is no where in sight, during Forest Products Week, Oct. 18-24.

The Arkansas Agricultural Extension Service says production of timber and wood products is the state's No. 1 manufacturing business.

It provides 24,000 Arkansans with jobs with a payroll reaching almost $75 million a year, the Extension Service said. And, when furniture and paper manufacturing are added, the payroll jumps to almost $144 million.

The growth of the forest industry in the state has been almost phenomenal. Historical records indicate the first set-aside sawmill was established at Helena, in 1826. In the 1920s the pulp and paper industry began in the state and since then the production of timber and wood products has grown to a $364 million a year industry.

And, the growth has not stopped. In recent years the state's major wood products users have announced frequently plans for expansion and increased production.

One of the greatest advantages of timber as a natural resource is that, unlike minerals such as metal ores or oil, the supply can be reproduced. Extension Service Forester Harold A. Howell says that with proper management and protection, forests can provide more than enough timber to supply the demand of the more than 5,000 ways that wood and wood products are used.

Though many of the wood products originating in Arkansas are imported to other states, much of the production is put to use at home.

These uses range from wood to construct buildings to pulpwood used in paper production to the wood used in tool handles for hammers used in industry and hoes used in agriculture.

The manufacture of paper, a product made from wood fibers, is one of the state's key industries.

Two of the nation's major paper industries, International Paper Co. and the Georgia Pacific Co. have major operations in the state.

According to the Extension Service, every year the two Little Rock daily newspapers alone produce more than 70 million copies of daily and Sunday newspapers, made from 17,000 tons of paper.

To make this amount of paper, the Extension Service said, requires 26,000 cords of wood, selectively harvested from the annual growth of 15,000 acres of managed forest.

Wood fibers also are used in many other products besides paper. It can be placed in solution and pressed through tiny holes under high pressure to produce rayon for the production of cloth or cords for tires. Wood used in the construction

Two Reasons Red China Set Off Bomb

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Industrially weak and 20 years late, Red China could not overtake the United States as a nuclear power for many years. Why, then, did it explode an atom bomb?

There are two answers, one military, the other political. Lacking long-range missiles or other delivery capabilities, the apparent military aim of the fledgling Chinese nuclear program is to develop tactical atomic weapons to beef up already powerful conventionally armed forces.

Their purpose: to deter the United States from moving troops into South Viet Nam or Laos, or into any other regional conflicts in which Peking is directly or indirectly involved.

Secret Chinese army bulletins released by the United States reveal that three years ago the Chinese high command looked forward to the use of tactical nuclear weapons but made no references to strategic weapons, whose usefulness would depend on missiles or aircraft.

A study of the secret Chinese papers suggests that Peking is fully aware of the dangers involved in atomic weapons and, despite its public stance of recklessness and belligerence, is not likely to embark on nuclear adventures.

The 1961 papers recognized that American nuclear attacks would decimate Chinese cities, while bacteriological warfare would reduce the population to starvation.

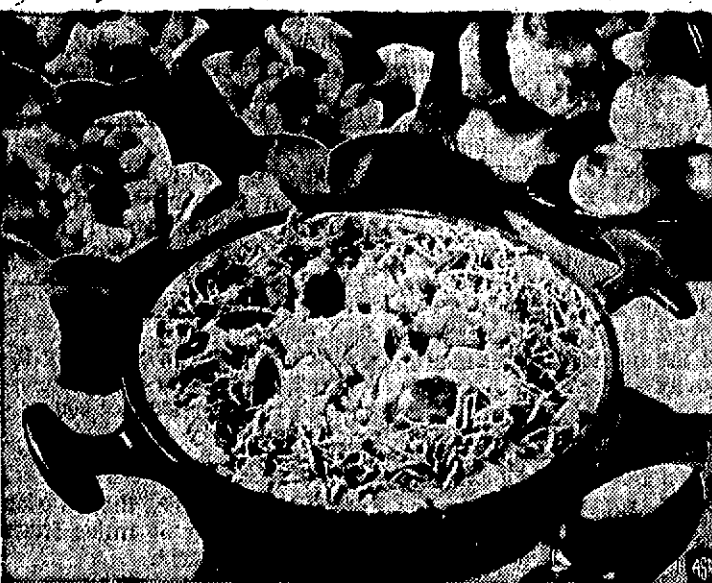

Politically, the Chinese presumably hope to intimidate of houses and buildings also: is an important product of the Arkansas timber industry. Census Bureau figures indicate that 80 per cent of the state's 524,000 homes are constructed of lumber.

In addition to being a major revenue source for the state, timber also has intangible benefits.

It provides scenic beauty, one of the state's key assets in the growth of Arkansas' tourist trade; it provides watershed which protect the state's important water resources and it provides cover for the game which each year fill the pouches of many hunters from both inside and outside the state.

Ah, So Good: Oriental Casserole

Fascinating is the word for Oriental Casserole. An unusual combination of crisp and tender textures, mild and sharp flavors, and variety in the shapes of its ingredients, it makes a conversation-piece dish to set before family and friends.

There's no trick to making Oriental Casserole. Start with a simple cream sauce and add some shredded cheese; cook until melted and smoothly blended. Nice thing about this recipe, it uses an entire 8-ounce wedge of sharp natural Cheddar cheese so there's no measuring to do and the sauce has a rich cheese flavor. The wedge is easy to hold for shredding, too. Made from whole milk, it adds a bonus of good nutrition as well as flavor to the dish. Once the cheese-rich sauce is seasoned and completed, all that's left is to combine the rice, chicken, water chestnuts and mushrooms and layer the mixture with the sauce in a casserole. The noodles go on last, and the dish is baked for a short 25 minutes.

Oriental Casserole is especially suitable for a buffet supper. Being easy to serve, easy to eat, and providing 8 to 10 generous servings. Accompany it with a variety of hard and soft rolls, and follow it with a fruit cup and beverage for dessert and you'll have a menu of unusual interest and appeal.

- Oriental Casserole
- 2 tablespoons Parkay margarine
 - 2 tablespoons flour
 - 1 1/2 cups milk
 - 1 8-oz. wedge Sharp Natural Cheddar Cheese, shredded
 - 1 teaspoon soy sauce
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 - 2 cups cooked rice
 - 2 cups diced cooked chicken
 - 1 8-oz. can water chestnuts, sliced
 - 1 3-oz. can sliced mushrooms, drained
 - 1 3-oz. can chow mein noodles

Make a cream sauce with margarine, flour and milk. Add cheese and seasonings; heat until cheese is melted. Combine rice, chicken, water chestnuts and mushrooms. Alternate layers of rice mixture and sauce in a 2-quart casserole; arrange noodles around edge of casserole. Bake at 350°, 25 minutes. 8 to 10 servings.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the minor miracles of a television series is that adventure stories are able to build any suspense at all.

Will Marshal Dillon draw faster than the bad man? There's no doubt about it if there is to be another show next week. Will Amos Burke solve the murder? He'd better if he expects the audience to return.

David Janssen, an able and personable young actor, has been playing the part of an escaped convict for more than a year in an ABC series, "The Fugitive."

As Dr. Richard Kimble, he was convicted of the murder of his wife — a miscarriage of justice because he did not commit the deed and, in fact, caught a glimpse of a one-eyed man whom he suspects of the crime.

En route to prison and execution, he escaped in a convenient train wreck. But he is relentlessly pursued by a police lieutenant. All this background is explained each Tuesday before the audience is set for Dr. Kimble's weekly narrow escape from capture.

Tuesday night's episode was typical. Working as a gardener Kimble is mistaken for the head of the house and kidnapped for ransom by a paraplegic.

Police brought into the case learn his true identity — and for a time it looks as if his goose is cooked no matter what happens. Will the kidnaper or his wife kill Kimble? Will the police catch him along with the kidnappers? We know better. The kidnappers thoughtfully dropped him off along the road just before they drove blithely into a police trap.

Even if one suspects the ultimate outcome of each episode, it still makes rather stimulating viewing.

"That Was the Week That Was" has been pre-empted so often by paid political programs this season that it has only managed to present one show. It was skipped again Tuesday night by NBC. The reason was the special half-hour memorial program for the late Herbert Hoover.

CBS' special tribute to the former president came in the spot usually occupied by "World War One," and was followed by a paid political broadcast in place of "Petticoat Junction."

their immediate neighbors, including India.

President Johnson immediately assured Asian nations that the United States would come to their assistance. But India and other nations may reason that it would be more prudent to reach an agreement with Peking now than to rely on American retaliation that might come too late.

The Chinese also presumably hope through this display of power to influence the underdeveloped nations of Asia, Africa and South America they are courting. So far, there has been no cascade of congratulatory messages from any of these countries, most of which have signed the nuclear test-ban treaty.

Glenn Placed Ohio Race in Spotlight

By PHIL GUNBY

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. brought this year's Ohio Senate contest to national attention.

Injuries suffered by Glenn in a fall forced him from his bid to take the Democratic senatorial nomination from 5-year-old Sen. Stephen M. Young.

Now Young is fighting to hold his seat against the challenge of Rep. at Large Robert Taft Jr., who bears the state's most famous Republican family name.

Young is a veteran Democratic campaigner. Fresh out of law school, he won his way into Ohio's General Assembly in 1912 — five years before Taft was born. In 1958, when defeat of a right-to-work proposal also swept most Ohio Republicans out of office, Young unseated Sen. John Bricker.

Taft is the son of the late "Mr. Republican," Sen. Robert A. Taft, and grandson of President William Howard Taft. He has been building his own reputation for almost a decade in the Ohio Legislature and now, in his first term in Congress.

Young has a reputation as a scrapper. His letters to constituents pull no punches. In reply to one letter which he considered offensive, for instance, he answered: "Dear sir, you are a liar."

Taft has been described as cool and deliberate. He has an infectious chuckle, is a hand-shaker — but not a backslapper, aides say — and generally appears more at ease than his father in crowds.

Taft, at 47, is considered to have a fine future in the Republican party, and some of those partisans fond of taking long-range views picture him in the White House.

He is the favorite in this contest, but the inevitable question of his relationship with Sen. Barry M. Goldwater comes up.

"We feel that Bob can attract more independent voters than Goldwater," says State Rep. Robert F. Reckman, Taft's campaign manager and long-time friend. "Of course, if the national ticket does well in Ohio — and Goldwater is expected to carry our state — it will help Bob."

Young refers to his opponent as "Junior," says he is against "Birch, Barry and Bob," and predicts: "The major factor in this election will be my record contrasted with Junior's."

Physical fitness advocate Young contends this is the second best record among current members of the Senate — 95 per cent attendance and voting. He has been a solid legislative backer of the Kennedy-Johnson administration, voting for the federal tax cut, limited nuclear test ban treaty, civil rights, health care for the aged and the Youth Employment Act, and a consistent critic of, among other things, civil defense — "out-moded as the Civil War cannon ball."

Taft counters Young's efforts to the him too closely to Goldwater by noting that he voted for the civil rights bill while Goldwater opposed it, and that they differ on other issues although both are conservatives.

Taft hammers at the themes of a need for a Congress that is not a rubber stamp for the president. His backers think he will take some of Cleveland's traditional Democratic vote away Young in this area is of course not shared by Democrats.

Eye Operation Is Successful

CALTANISSETTA, Sicily (AP) — In a darkened clinic room Tuesday with only one lamp burning, Dr. Luigi Picardo took the bandages off the eyes of five brothers blind since birth.

Calogero Rotolo, 4, the youngest, stared in amazement, then cried out "La caravata!"

and reached out timidly to touch the doctor's necktie.

Giuseppe, 9, who saw his mother for the first time, sobbed only "Mamma!"

One after another Gioacchino, 11; Carmello, 13, and Paolo, 15, sat up and blinked at the light. Each one could see.

"It was an enormous relief," said the doctor who had operated to remove cataracts which had left each of the brothers blind from birth. "I was afraid that with one or two of them the operation might be less successful. Psychologically it would have been a terrible blow to one alone to be left blind."

A tornado struck Little Rock on October 2nd, 1894, killed two persons, injured 40 and did property damage of one million dollars.

California's 18 national forests comprise one-fifth of the total area of that state.

U.S. Puzzled Over Change in Russia

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American government is still puzzled and no wonder about why Nikita Khrushchev is now among the unemployed.

When Moscow announced last Thursday that Khrushchev had been bounced as No. 1 man President Johnson admitted he was baffled.

He did the same Sunday night in his nationwide broadcast: "We do not know exactly what happened."

Khrushchev like Stalin held the two most important jobs: premier and secretary of the Communist party. He lost both. The puzzle began there.

The reasons for firing him were given as age and ill health. He is 70 but very active.

Then the new leadership accused him of "harebrained scheming, bragging, phrase-mongering" and "armchair methods."

But the two top new leaders who split his two jobs between them were his protégés and right-hand men: Leonid I. Brezhnev 57 secretary of the party and Alexei N. Kosygin 60 premier.

Right after calling him "harebrained" the new leadership said it would continue his policies.

If that's not confusing enough there's the history of jiggling and juggling inside the top leadership from away back.

If that history repeats itself as it probably will, Brezhnev and Kosygin are only temporary front men and the real leader is playing quiet or hasn't emerged yet.

In 1952 the year before Joseph Stalin died one of his most trusted aides Anastas Mikoyan got so enthusiastic about his boss that he shouted in public: "Glory to Stalin."

There was more of the same by others in 1953 when Stalin died particularly in the funeral orations by three men in leadership.

Georgi Malenkov called him the "greatest genius of humanity." Malenkov got one of Stalin's two jobs the premiership.

(The other secretary of the party went to Khrushchev who stayed in the background playing mum several years until he lined up his gang.)

Laurenti P. Beria secret police boss and a frightening figure praised his departed "beloved leader" and promised continuation of civil liberties.

The Russian people never had had civil liberties but at least this made good reading abroad.

And V. M. Molotov foreign minister who said they all could be proud of working under Stalin 30 years. All this was on March 9 1953.

By July 10 Beria was out on his ear, under arrest and accused of not only of trying to be the No. 1 man but of converting the Soviet Union to capitalism. On Christmas Eve Moscow announced he had been executed.

Almost unbelievably the power of the secret police was diminished then.

In 1955 Malenkov was fired for it was said failing in agriculture and thinking too much about consumer goods and not enough about heavy industry.

He confessed publicly he was inexperienced although this seemed odd since he had been perhaps Stalin's closest aide.

Nikolai Bulganin got his job as premier. But this as it turned out was also only temporary. In three years he was out.

In 1956 Molotov was out as foreign minister and on Feb. 24 of that year Khrushchev rocked the world by denouncing Stalin as a murderer and monster.

Even Mikoyan joined in reviling the memory of his old chief. Stalin was excoriated for promoting the "cult of the individual."

Khrushchev now pretty clearly the boss proclaimed the need for "collective leadership" and an end to "one-man" rule.

By 1957 Malenkov and Molotov had been banished into obscurity. So was Bulganin in 1958 when Khrushchev took over his job as premier combining it with the secretary's job as Stalin did. Khrushchev was now No. 1.

But when he got the sack last week he was accused of practicing the very things he had denounced Stalin for: ignoring "collective leadership" and using "one-man" rule.

Naturally Johnson and the American government are not only wondering why Khrushchev was really fired but who and where the new No. 1 man is.

Officer's Family Gets Huge Sum

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Money donated to the family of Patrolman J. D. Tippit, killed Nov. 22 while trying to arrest Lee Harvey Oswald, was distributed Tuesday by Dist. Court Clerk Bill Shaw.

Marie Tippit, widow of the slain police officer, received a check for $312,916.62. In addition, $330,946.46 was given Mrs. Tippit and J. Donald Squibb, trust officer for Republic National Bank, to be held in trust for the three Tippit children — Charles Allen, Brenda Kay and Curtis Glenn — and $3,718.16 went to the city police and firemen's welfare fund.

Distribution of the money was authorized by Dist. Judge Dee Brown Walker last week.

Unrest Over Fall of Khrushchev

BERLIN (AP) — Considerable unrest in the East German Communist party ranks over the fall of Nikita Khrushchev was reported from East German today.

Khrushchev's fate sparked a lively discussion in a meeting of party functionaries and officials of the mass organizations, said a party communiqué.

An unofficial Western intelligence agency also reported that party propagandists were having a hard time answering the tough questions in unruly discussion groups.

Information Bureau West said its East German sources reported "visible unrest" over Khrushchev's fall among the middle and lower ranks of the Communist party.

Election in New York Is Big Guess

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP) — New York's senatorial election at this late stage is still a guessing-game, based on the effect of elements as elusive as quicksilver and the answers to some key questions.

Will the "magic name" carry Robert F. Kennedy to victory over his Republican opponent, Sen. Kenneth B. Keating?

Certainly, it has brought out huge, emotionally aroused crowds. In Glens Falls, at 1 a.m., for example, people were still lining the streets, some wearing night clothes, to see Kennedy. He has had tremendous exposure to voters since the first moments of his campaign.

It is anybody's guess as to how much of this frenzy will be translated to votes on Nov. 3. Kennedy thinks a fraction of it will.

What has been the effect of Keating's refusal to support Sen. Barry Goldwater, the GOP candidate for president?

"There are fundamental differences of viewpoint," Keating said when he declined to endorse the national ticket.

President Johnson is expected to carry New York by a mighty margin. The New York Daily News, announcing the first findings in its presidential straw poll last week, said the survey showed Johnson running three-to-one ahead of Goldwater.

Question: How many New Yorkers who vote for Johnson will simply pull the lever for a straight Democratic ticket, thus also casting a ballot for Kennedy? And how many others will split the ticket to vote for Keating?

Republicans hopefully recall some notable instances of ticket-splitting. In 1962, Democrat Arthur Levitt was elected state controller by 790,000 votes while GOP Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was winning by 530,000.

If Kennedy receives a "sympathy vote" as the brother of the assassinated president, Keating may be the recipient of a "sympathy vote" on other grounds.

The "carpetbagger" issue is a handicap to Kennedy. He was born in Massachusetts and lived in Virginia before moving to New York, where he had lived for a time many years ago. Keating twits him about this, saying "it's difficult to become an instant New Yorker," and "there are people who have been waiting in line at the World's Fair longer than my opponent has been in New York."

But Keating has another handicap in the form of the Conservative Party which has put up a senatorial candidate, Henry Paolucci. Paolucci, 43, is a professor of history and political science at Iona College, New Rochelle.

In the 1962 elections, the Conservatives cast 141,877 votes for their candidate for governor, and 116,151 votes for their senatorial candidate.

If the Keating-Kennedy contest is close, these 100,000-plus votes could spell the difference.

The minority groups in New York are generally believed to vote Democratic. Thus, Kennedy should be the beneficiary of most of the support of these groups. But here, again, there may be a question in this election.

Keating has been active in the field of civil rights. He authored the Civil Rights Act of 1957 and aides say he contributed substantially to other such bills.

"Sure, I know that," said a

Negro in Hempstead, L.I., "but most Negroes don't. They know what Kennedy and his brother did."

However, a Negro attorney in Harlem, Mrs. Cora T. Walker, said, "that was true earlier in the campaign but we've been getting the word around about Keating. There's a good deal of re-thinking now." Mrs. Walker is a Republican.

The Negro newspaper, New York Amsterdam News, has endorsed Kennedy, saying he was "a great attorney-general and we believe he will make a great senator."

Kennedy is 38, trim, tailored, with all the Kennedy drive and determination. He took his pre-legal training at Harvard and then was graduated from the University of Virginia Law School. He went immediately into the criminal division of the Department of Justice.

He managed John F. Kennedy's 1952 campaign for senator from Massachusetts and the 1960 campaign for president.

In the present election battle, Kennedy has referred often to what he considers the principal achievements of the Kennedy-Johnson Administration and to the actions of his later brother.

Keating is 64. He has a ruddy complexion, blue eyes, grey hair worn long, and an incandescent smile.

At one time, he was a Latin teacher. When he was 20, he entered Harvard Law School and later joined a law firm.

He has been in Washington 18 years, first as a congressman and now as a senator.

Where does the race stand at this stage?

The New York Daily News poll had Kennedy ahead, three-to-two. Herbert Brownell, former attorney-general, now Keating's campaign director, says the senator is ahead by "a hair's breadth."

Both Parties Like The Coffee Party

This year, civic-minded women everywhere are coming to the aid of the political party of their choice. All, however, join together in their approval of the coffee party, sometimes known as the Candidate's Kaffeeklatsch!

There's something about a friendly cup of coffee that stimulates thinking, makes it easier for people to talk and listen. "Come for coffee with our candidate" is a simple invitation, but elections over the past twelve years show that it packs real political power.

How To Give A Political Coffee

If you plan a coffee for your favorite candidate, you will find that it is an easy and pleasant task. First, invite enough people to provide a worthwhile audience for your busy guest of honor. Don't be afraid to crowd your guests in—there's a psychological advantage for your candidate if you do.

All you need to serve is coffee, coffee and more coffee. Cookies or some other sweet may be added, but they aren't necessary. The coffee, however, is necessary and should be hot and delicious.

For twenty people (two cups apiece) use one pound of coffee to two gallons of water. To brew excellent coffee in a kettle, place regular grind coffee in a clean cloth sack, allowing half the space for expansion of the grounds. Tie closed sack to kettle handle. Bring measured water to a boil, then reduce heat below boiling and drop coffee sack in water. Brew over low heat six to eight minutes, agitating sack occasionally.

Hoover Steps Paved Way for New Deal

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The greatest single difference between President Herbert Hoover, who died Tuesday, and President Franklin D. Roosevelt was perhaps this: Hoover was more rigid. It showed in the way they fought the depression.

Neither the self-made Hoover nor the born-rich Roosevelt seemed to have a clearly thought out philosophy of government and its responsibilities. Neither man was an intellectual.

The long tradition of rugged individualism and a minimum of government interference in the lives of Americans reached its peak in the latter part of the 19th century and the early part of the 20th.

These were the years when Hoover and Roosevelt were growing up and maturing. Both men were heirs of this tradition. But while Hoover sought to cling to it, Roosevelt was willing to abandon it. That made all the difference.

Yet, by the time Roosevelt defeated him in the 1932 election, Hoover had gone further in using government resources to fight the nation's economic collapse, than any depression president in history.

The steps he took paved the way for the New Deal. But they fell short of being enough. He never truly had an antidepression program. But neither did Roosevelt before he took office.

In the 1932 campaign Hoover spent most of his time defending what he had — or had not done. Roosevelt made proposals, bobbed, weaved, vacillated, reversed his ground and contradicted himself.

At times he proposed going further than Hoover in coping with depression. At times he suggested doing less. This made it appear at times that he didn't understand the problem.

Hoover had been berated for three years for not throwing more of the government's resources into the struggle to revitalize the economy, although under him the government went into debt trying to help out.

It seems ironic now, but the Democrats criticized him not because he had done too little but because he had done too much. Their main criticism — and Roosevelt was the main spokesman — was that Hoover was a profligate spender.

Roosevelt complained that Hoover wanted too much control in Washington while at the same time he himself was proposing policies that would put more control there.

Roosevelt proposed increasing aid to the unemployed while wanting to cut spending, which he even promised to reduce 25 per cent. Yet, as it turned out, in his 12 years in office he never balanced the budget once.

Hoover, a kindly, friendly but aloof and undramatic man, seemed bleak compared with the ebullient Roosevelt who, despite his twists and turns, had a warm voice, an infectious grin and a great sense of politics.

He was able, as Hoover never was, to convey a sense of hope to a country flat on its back. Hoover was so tired and battered that by the campaign's end an assistant stayed ready to push a chair under him if he collapsed while speaking.

One historian, William E. Leuchtenburg, says: "No president ever worked harder in the White House than Herbert Hoover but he was never able to convince the nation he cared deeply for the people and their suffering."

Roosevelt, flexible, willing to experiment, try new ideas, abandon ones that didn't work, listen to advice, as president became for millions the great father of them all.

Just because he was flexible and not bound by tradition, America took its historic turn away from individualism as Dr. Cure-All to government responsibility for the general welfare.

Out of that all else flowed: Social Security, labor legislation, unemployment pay, more jobs for the unemployed. Hoover was the end of an era, Roosevelt the beginning of a new one.

Hoover realized it. In the last speech of his 1932 campaign he

Heavy Demo Registration in California

By BOB WOOD

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California, one of the big and vital states in the 1964 presidential election, has reported its heaviest Democratic registration in 14 years.

The Democrats claim 5.9 per cent of the state's record 8,184,151 eligible voters.

The Republicans have 38.9 per cent with the remainder distributed between miscellaneous and those who declined to state party preference.

Not since 1950 have the Democrats had such a margin. That year the percentage was Democrats 58.4, Republicans 37.1.

Republicans point out that in 1950 Earl Warren, now Chief Justice of the United States, won his third term as governor by defeating Democrat James Roosevelt.

The largest Democratic majority in the vast 42 years was 1942 — 60.2 per cent to 5.9 — and that year Warren, a Republican, won his first term as governor, besting incumbent Democrat Culbert Olson.

The 1962 percentage favored the Democrats, 56.9 to 39.8.

Republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater who has listed California, with its 4 electoral votes, as one of the four key states in his bid for the White House. The others are Texas, Illinois and Ohio.

In the 1960 presidential election, when Republican Richard M. Nixon carried California, the Democrats had a registration edge of 1.2 million. This year it is 1.55 million.

Democrats see the registration as an indication of Goldwater's defeat in the nation's most populous state.

Republicans shrug off the figures as just statistics.

The state Democratic chairman, Roger Kent, said the registration gains reflected a repudiation of Goldwater.

John P. Vukasin Jr., an official of the Volunteer Citizens for Goldwater organization, said there was no connection between the registration total and the presidential race.

Kent said the Democratic gains could be credited to a "startling lack of enthusiasm for the Republican candidate and the Republican platform."

Kent predicted that 35 per cent of the Republican vote in Northern California would go to President Johnson.

Vukasin took a different view. "A large number of people coming into California," he said, "are from areas where they traditionally register as Democrats."

"I can see no adverse affects of the registration on the Goldwater campaign."

Critical of Faubus

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Capital Citizens Council, a segregationist group, was critical Tuesday in a newspaper advertisement of Gov. Orval E. Faubus' endorsement of the Johnson-Humphrey national ticket.

Amis Guthridge, council president, said he was for Goldwater. He said public response to the advertisement had been favorable to the council position.

stated the choice before the American people:

"This campaign is more than a contest between two men. It is more than a contest between parties. It is a contest between two philosophies of government."

"Our opponents are proposing changes and so-called new deals which would destroy the very foundations of our American system . . . You cannot extend the mastery of government over the daily life of a people without somewhere making it master of the people's souls and thoughts."

But the people — with so many of them ill-clad, ill-housed, ill-fed and frightened — were willing to take the chance on big government.

Two years ago 75 historians were asked how they could rank American presidents. They put Roosevelt among the five great ones along with Lincoln, Washington, Wilson and Jefferson.

They placed Hoover among the "average" presidents, behind McKinley and Taft, ahead of Eisenhower.

Hoover was not responsible for the depression whose seeds had been planted at home and abroad long before he took office in March 1929. He had seven months of false prosperity and the world fell on him in October.

He had been a brilliant administrator as secretary of commerce. And being such an administrator might have been enough if prosperity had continued. With the depression he had to be more than an administrator. He had to be an innovator. And he wasn't.

Mexico Is Becoming Amercianized

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — To the horror of old revolutionaries, some gringo touches are creeping into Mexico's impassioned nationalism.

This is more apparent in Mexico's north, the part closest to the United States, but even in this lovely bastion of Mexican super-patriotism, some 1,000 miles from the border, you have the hamburger and hotdog, the Twist and Frug competing strongly with the Taco, enchilada and ranchero music.

The border towns, Juarez and Tijuana, are the liveliest samples of the jazzed-up Mexico. The Nogales bullring features "University of Arizona Day." Synchronized college-style cheering for the bull is not uncommon in the Tijuana bullring when California students are about.

Americanisms are a common part of northern Spanish. How else will you order a bloody mary or cornflakes? You hear "okay" as often as "si."

The height of affirmative emphasis is embodied in "Seguro que hell yes!"

The oldstyle cantina, or saloon, is bowing to bright, juke-boxed soda fountains offering impressive arrays of U.S.-style sandwiches and soft drinks. Even the music is changing.

Some startling changes are apparent even in the capital, city of cathedrals and kosher-style delicatessens.

"Tourism is a major Mexican industry," explains Mexico City hotelman Luis Davila. "We're catering largely to American tastes, so it has to be that way." Mexico picked up $357 million last year on tourism alone.

The effects of being neighbors works both ways. The flow of Mexican tourists toward the United States — 267,934 last year — is increasing. This is contributing to the preservation of Mexican customs and traditions on the U.S. side of the border from California to Texas. Department stores in the bigger Southwest and California cities keep Spanish-speaking staff members dealing exclusively with Mexican shoppers.

Televised Mexican bullfights are regular fare in Los Angeles.

The result has been to bring U.S.-Mexico relations to perhaps their most cordial level in history. There hasn't been a serious rift between the two neighbors since the Mexican oil expropriation decree in 1938.

Last month the two countries quietly settled a century-old dispute over 600 acres of disputed land lying between El Paso, Tex., and Juarez, Mexico.

Efforts are under way to settle another thorny border problem, the salty content of Colorado River water Mexico gets under treaty.

The salinity problem remains among the more fertile issues for exploitation by Mexico's far left to promote anti-U.S. sentiment. Others include racial discrimination and the argument that low American prices for Mexican commodities can wipe out any Alliance for Progress aid.

But anti-U.S. sentiment is finding a sympathetic ear only in the Federal District—Mexico City—and a few neighboring areas where less than 15 per cent of Mexico's 40 millions live. A Czechoslovak cultural center shut down in Monterrey for lack of interest.

Lincoln County was formed March 29 1871 from parts of Drew and Jefferson counties and was named for Abraham Lincoln.

Perfect Partner for Steak

Families in the rice producing states (Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Texas) like big, thick, juicy steaks just as much as families in other parts of the country. But what they like to eat with their steak may differ from the steak accompaniments served elsewhere.

As you may have guessed, rice is a frequent partner for steak in the southern states which produce most of the rice used in this country. For example, Mushroom-Almond Rice, a favorite recipe from the files of a Texas homemaker, is often served with steak, and with roast beef, too. It is a savory mixture of rice cooked in beef bouillon with onion then mixed with sauteed almonds and mushrooms, and it takes lots less time to prepare than it does to broil a thick beef steak.

Indeed, families of the men who produce rice in this country like to eat rice in every conceivable way and rice is kept on hand at all times, uncooked and cooked — the latter stored in their refrigerators and home freezers. They know how easy it is to cook rice and how simple it is to reheat refrigerated and frozen rice. The magic 1-2-1 method of cooking rice, originated in the rice belt, is as follows: Combine 1 cup regular milled white rice, 2 cups water, and 1 teaspoon salt in a saucepan. Heat to boiling, stir once, cover, lower heat. Simmer 14 minutes. Do not peek. To reheat cooked rice, add 2 tablespoons liquid to each cup and cook, covered, for 4 to 5 minutes.

Mushroom Almond Rice

1 cup chopped onions
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup uncooked rice
2 cups beef bouillon
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup sliced almonds
1 can (4 1/2 oz.) sliced mushrooms

Cook onions in 2 tablespoons butter until tender. Add rice and continue cooking until golden. Add bouillon and pepper. Stir well. Heat to boiling. Cover pan, reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes or until liquid is absorbed. Saute almonds and mushrooms in remaining butter. When rice is tender, add almonds and mushrooms and toss lightly. Makes 6 servings.

They found Velma in her living room with Sam Fergus and Allen Landall. Velma was standing, the inevitable martini in one hand, and as always she was perfectly sober. Evidently Velma had called on them to come to her as soon as she had heard from Craig.

"Bud should be in on this," Craig said.

Velma's gesture with her half-empty cocktail glass was like a shrug. "I tried to phone him, too, Dickie, and Dede laughed at me. She said it would be a ridiculous waste of effort to pull him out of bed."

Craig dropped himself into a chair before telling his story. When he quoted the kidnaper's final demand—"Either you find the missing money or you raise more"—the intense expression on Velma's face did not change, but Fergus winced and Landall's eyebrows drew down.

"That's what we're up against. On our way back I kept asking myself what more we can do. There are four possibilities. They're not new to us—we've already talked about them—but the problem has changed now, and they're all we have. First, the most obvious one: try to dig up that suitcase full of."

Landall broke in with a snorting sound. "We don't even know where to begin!"

"We all could submit to a lie-detector test."

"We'd have to call in an expert. Even in the hands of the best experts on earth, that machine is not reliable—not reliable enough to be admitted as evidence in court. I read somewhere that a good dose of tranquilizer can beat it."

Landall seemed anxious to discourage suggestions as fast as they came up, even when he made them himself.

"Besides," he added quickly, "you're overlooking one big trouble with anything we might try. If this was an inside job—and there's not much chance it wasn't—then, naturally, we'll be bucking somebody in the know, somebody who can listen to all our plans and watch every move we made."

"Then perhaps—" Fergus was suggesting it quite seriously—"perhaps each of us should act independently."

"Each of us spy on all the others?" Landall laughed in contempt of the idea—"a laugh remarkably like the kidnaper's. We'd fall all over each other's feet."

"So, Allen?" Fergus was frowning at him. "We do nothing while Hugo dies?"

Landall was on the defensive, and he chose evasion. "You got any bright ideas, Sam?"

"The truth is there. It's only a question of how to uncover it."

Lew took a step forward. "There's another way to tackle it. At that hour of the morning, when the money was stolen it's quiet as a graveyard all around here. Assume a car was used."

"And who's going to take on this gumshoe job of questioning everybody's neighbors?" Landall asked. "You, Lew?"

"That's right," Lew nodded slowly. "Me. The only one who has nothing to cover up."

Fergus then reminded Craig:

"Four possibilities, you said, Dick. What are the others?"

"The second, also obvious: lacking the money we originally raised, we'll have to raise more, as much as we can. Velma, can you dig down any deeper?"

"Except for a little I have kept to live on for a while, I have given my last cent."

"Personally—" Fergus spread his arthritic hands. "I'm like Velma, at the end of my rope."

"You can draw on the firm's funds again."

"Not enough." He hesitated. "I must tell you—even though I'm overstepping a confidence—Sandor Productions has not been doing too well. Hugo himself has drawn on it too heavily. If we take all the rest, or even most of course it will be disastrous."

"Call in the FBI."

"Not!" Velma blurted it out. "From the first we have all agreed this is much too dangerous. We can't even think of it."

Craig remembered the kidnaper's incredible proposition: "I'll trade you Sandor for Sandor's wife." It had been immediately dropped with a taunting laugh, but it could be made again, and insisted upon, as an ultimatum. And what would Velma answer to that?

He pushed the question to the bottom of his mind, hoping it would never rise again. "That leaves us with the last long shot, try to get Hugo back by finding the snatches ourselves."

Fergus's objection was quick. "This is something else we decided against at the very start. We should not try to act like detectives. We're not trained, not in any way qualified. Except Lew."

Arkansans to Decide on 7 Amendments

(Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of eight articles on proposed constitutional amendments which will be on the Nov. 3 ballot.)

By JOHN R. STARR
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—In the 90 years since the Arkansas Constitution of 1874 was adopted, voters have amended it 50 times.

"They have had 45 chances—in 45 general elections—to change the document and they have considered hundreds of proposals. The average of just over one amendment adopted in each election demonstrates a marked reluctance to alter the foundation of the state's law."

Yet this year the electorate is asked to consider seven changes. If precedent holds, few will be adopted.

Only one of this year's proposals is really new—Amendment 57 which would open the way to establishment of a community junior colleges.

One of the others is a broadening of Amendment 49, the industrial financing amendment. The other five either have been defeated in the past or have provisions which have been previously rejected.

Three of these have—in one form or another—been defeated in each of the last two elections. They are amendments to increase taxing powers of cities and counties, to increase maximum salaries of state officials and to increase maximum salaries of county officials.

The numbers the amendments carry on the ballot are necessarily misleading. These are the numbers they will bear in the constitution if all are adopted. But if proposed Amendment 51 is defeated and proposed Amendment 52 is adopted, No. 52 will go into the constitution as No. 51.

Each amendment will be discussed in detail in succeeding articles. Basically they are:

Amendment 51: To increase the maximum salaries of state officials. (Referred to the ballot by the legislature.)

Amendment 52: To permit portions of counties or areas in more than one county to join in a district to finance an industry of hospital. (Referred by the legislature.)

Amendment 53: To increase the maximum property tax that cities and counties can collect for general operating expenses to 10 mills (one cent on each dollar of assessed valuation). (Referred by the legislature.)

Amendment 54: To set up a permanent voter registration system and abolish the poll tax as a requirement for voting. (Referred by petitions circulated by the Committee for Voter Registration.)

Amendment 55: To legalize gambling in Garland County (Petitions circulated by the Hot Springs Chamber of Commerce.)

Amendment 56: To increase maximum salaries of county officials. (Petitions circulated by the Young Democrats of Arkansas.)

Sneaky Way to Detect Violation

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) —

Howard Babcock walked up to the bar at the Four Hills Country Club in Albuquerque and purchased three liquor drinks.

This, he alleged, occurred Sept. 22.

Babcock signed an administrative complaint Tuesday against the country club, charging it with selling liquor to a non-member, which is forbidden by state law.

Babcock is state liquor director.

"I must tell you—even though I'm overstepping a confidence—Sandor Productions has not been doing too well. Hugo himself has drawn on it too heavily. If we take all the rest, or even most of course it will be disastrous."

Some Rolling Recessions Possibility

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Are the rolling recessions of the 1950s still a strong possibility for a comeback in the middle 1960s?

Some see in the current downturn in housing construction, and signs that it will continue for some months ahead, an example of just such a rolling recession — although admittedly minor compared with its predecessors.

This was the term used to describe the doldrums in some industries while others continued to push to new highs. When the latter stalwarts faltered in turn, the previously depressed sectors of the economy usually were rallying again. The result was to keep the over-all state of business from the alarming stage.

Those directly affected were depressed enough. But their plight wasn't made worse by a general downturn that would have fed on itself.

Housing now is one of the few sectors of the economy that isn't still rising, or at least holding its own. Industrial output, business expansion plans, retail sales, all point toward new highs.

Weakest today is apartment building which was booming in 1963. Permits for single family houses also are below the year-ago figures.

Just wait for the young marrieds — and for the still bigger crop of youngsters about to enter their marriageable years — to get to the family expansion stage. That's the confident cry of the housing industry. The needs of this oncoming population explosion should start another boom in home building, probably in the final years of this decade.

The demand for new mortgages has eased. This has freed investment funds for other fields where money and credit demand is rising.

This tends to hold down any pressure for higher interest rates on long-term loans for business spending on new plants and equipment, and for bank loans for expanded business activities in a growing economy.

The figures on current home building are far from alarming. The Census Bureau says that in September, the seasonally adjusted annual rate of construction starts on private dwellings of all types was 1,484,000 units. But just the year before the rate was 1,747,000 units.

Many builders hold that the decline this year has probably leveled off now.

Conditions may vary sharply between regions of the nation. Some are reporting a surplus of vacancies just now, especially in recently built apartment houses. Other regions are growing fast, and still can fill new housing units.

The over-all economy is much too strong for the slowdown in any one sector to have more than a rolling effect.

Bus Rate Increase

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Commerce Commission Tuesday set Nov. 17 as the date for a hearing on a proposed 10 per cent rate increase requested by about 15 bus lines.

No one opposed the proposed increase. The lines had filed notice of the increase under a law that would have it effective Nov. 1.

The commission set aside the proposal indefinitely.

show's director wanted. On a live show, particularly a variety show, it is vital that acts obey instructions with drill team precision to keep the program on its tight time schedule. Mason seemed reluctant to leave the spotlight.

From this apparently innocent viewer's standpoint, Mason's worst sin seemed to be that he just wasn't funny and his jokes seemed pointless.

Fight Mosquitoes into Fall

Mosquitoes by the millions are kicking up their heels in many parts of the nation, causing discomfort for many Americans, and anguish for some.

Recently mosquitoes touched off an epidemic of encephalitis in Houston, Texas. There, as many as 31 suspected deaths have been reported. In such areas, where mosquitoes are serious health hazards, homeowners are being urged to help their communities control this menace.

Many homeowners are following the lead of municipalities in using effective pesticide sprays containing malathion to control mosquitoes. Malathion is classed as a non-persistent material, the scientists explain. That means that the insecticide can kill the mosquitoes quickly, but residues disappear as soon as the job is done.

More people than ever before find that they get welcome relief from mosquitoes and other night flying insects when they spray around patios, building foundations, shrubs, and low lawn and garden areas. Homeowners who have yet to get this job done will find that any pressure sprayer can be used to lightly mist with malathion. The chemical is contained in many well known brand formulations available to homeowners from local insecticide dealers.

Soviets Halt Downgrade of Khrushchey

By BIRGER FARUP

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Denmark's Communist newspaper says the Soviet Union's new leaders have halted their campaign to downgrade Nikita Khrushchey because of the adverse reaction from most European Communist parties.

Peter Schaeffer, Moscow correspondent of the Danish party's Land Og Folk, said meetings in Soviet plants, state institutions and other places attacking Khrushchey have been stopped.

Stig Bringert, Moscow correspondent of Copenhagen's liberal newspaper Politiken, reported that Khrushchey and his wife, Nina, have been installed under virtual house arrest in a four-room apartment "from where he can see the Kremlin towers."

"Khrushchey is said to have received a pension of 1,000 rubles a month — which is 300 rubles more than he himself gave former Foreign Minister Molotov," Bringert said. A ruble is valued at $1.11.

As Communist spokesmen outside the Soviet Union openly criticized the manner in which Khrushchey was dumped, the Kremlin issued an urgent call for Communist unity.

Communist leaders in Europe and elsewhere reacted with dismay and resentment after Pravda issued a blast Saturday against Khrushchey without actually naming him.

In the satellite sphere, the Polish, Hungarian and Czechoslovak parties openly praised Khrushchey.

The Norwegian Communist organ Friheten said that if Khrushchey made mistakes, his successors must share responsibility.

Luigi Longo, chief of Italy's Communist party, told a rally in Milan Sunday: "The way in which Comrade Khrushchey has been replaced leaves us worried and critical."

Israel's party paid tribute to Khrushchey's leadership and asked Moscow for "more information" on his ouster.

Offenbach considered the "Tales of Hoffman" his greatest work.

Killed in Wreck

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Stephen Inmon, 13 months, was killed here Tuesday when he was thrown out of his parents' car by the force of a collision with a car driven by W. T. Ross, 77, of Jonesboro. The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Inmon, both 32, of Jonesboro, were slightly injured, officers said.

Closes Liquor Store

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Alvin E. Bell, director of the state Alcoholic Beverage Control agency, issued Tuesday an order closing a Little Rock liquor store for 60 days and placing its license under indefinite probation.

Minors purchased intoxicants at the store a few hours before one of them died in an automobile accident.

Poor Phone Service

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Walnut Hill Telephone Co. was ordered by the state Public Service Commission Tuesday to show, no later than Nov. 4 why it should not be required to improve service at Foreman. The commission said it had received complaints of "poor service" from the Foreman exchange.
